There were so many times in my years of parenting when all I wanted was a little peace. With seven of us in the house, it seemed there was always someone wanting something or arguing with somebody. As toddlers and teens, my kids badgered and whined, poked and pushed. Often I just wanted to say yes when no was the right answer, or give in to the loudest protester just for some peace and quiet.

Real peace, the peace Jesus talks about, is not the same as the peace which is the opposite of war. Arguments can continue, battles can be waged, people can disagree—but we can still experience God's peace. God's peace is not grounded in a particular condition or position. It is grounded in love. God's peace is an inner calm, a certainty that all will be well.

While peace and quiet do not necessarily go hand in hand, I discovered early in my parenting that I needed a little quiet to remind myself that God is with me and God is in me. I needed to set aside time each day when the kids were safely settled (usually during their daily dose of Sesame Street) to sit in quiet prayer. And I needed a yearly getaway retreat to rest and to restore body and spirit.

If you are like me and find it difficult to remain calm and not answer every angry word with an even angrier retort, if it is hard for you to say, "No, you can't," and not dissolve when called the meanest mom or dad in the world—then perhaps you, too, need to find some quiet time for prayer, to let go of your burdens and injuries so that your hands are free to accept God's gift of peace. Once you accept it, and rest in that gift, you can share it with all those around you.

FAMILY RESPONSE:

Set some time aside for family quiet time—a half-hour or so for reading or working with puzzles. Make sure everyone is in the same room but allow no talking.

REFLECTION

Historical Context – The Time of Absence

At the time of writing of the Gospel of John (during the last decade of the 1st Century), the community of believers were beginning to come to terms with the continued absence of Jesus. In the earlier gospels, particularly Mark, there is a feeling of expectation evident in the writing – an expectation that Jesus' promised return was imminent. By the time of John's community, there was an acceptance that the glorious return of Jesus still lay some time in the future. They wrestled with keeping alive the memory and message of Jesus when there was no end in sight.

Gospel Focus – Advocate

In the text, Jesus describes the Holy Spirit as the Advocate, sometimes translated as Paraclete. Both words have very similar meanings. Today when we describe someone as an advocate we usually mean that they stand up for and speak out for someone else or a particular cause. Advocate also has a legal meaning where the advocate bears witness and attests to the validity of another. The Holy Spirit is the Advocate of Jesus in that the action of the Holy Spirit continues to bear witness to the message of Jesus.

Different View – Peace

Jesus promises his peace to the disciples in today's gospel passage. However, some people argue that the world has not known that peace in the time since then. Some Jewish people cite this as one of their arguments against Jesus being regarded as the promised Messiah. One of the prophecies about the Messiah was that there would be universal peace once the Messiah arrived. Those who argue against Jesus as the Messiah point to the fact that since the time of Jesus, not a single day has gone by in our history in which there has not been some war or conflict occurring somewhere on earth.

Questions for Adults

How do you understand, 'we shall come to (them) and make our home with (them)'? In what way is the Holy Spirit an Advocate of Jesus? How do people act on the inspiration of the Holy Spirit? How can you strive to bring about the peace of Christ in your immediate community?

SAINT OF THE WEEK

SAINT JUSTIN (Martyr)

Patron Saint of Lecturers

Feast Day : 1st June

St. Justin was born of Greek parents in 100 A.D. in Samaria, Palestine. He came from a pagan family, but at the age of thirty-three, after years of studying the various systems of pagan philosophy, he found that the Christian religion answered the great questions about life and existence better than the philosophers, so he converted to Christianity. He devoted his whole life to the propagation and defence of the Faith in Asia Minor and at Rome.

He opened the first School of Christian Philosophy at Rome, where he drew the attention of the authorities because of his new teaching and faith in the risen Lord. His reputation for Christian zeal grew because of his writing in defense of the Catholic faith. He directed two "Apologies" to the Emperor Antoninus and to the Roman Senate. An edict of the Emperor Antoninus lessened the persecution of the Christians.

St. Justin had a deep admiration for the martyrs. He was fascinated that they believed in a person and a cause so much that they were willing to die rather than deny.

While teaching in Rome, he was arrested and imprisoned for openly and publicly professing his faith. He chose to be beheaded when he replied: "No right-minded man forsakes truth for falsehood." He died in Rome, a martyr, on 13th April, 165 AD. His feast day is celebrated on the 1st of June.
