I was always after a mountaintop experience for our family. I can't tell you how many vacations I planned envisioning our whole family arm-in-arm declaring, "How good it is to be here!" It never happened. I remember one vacation in particular that I looked forward to for months.

Four of our five children were teenagers. With seven different schedules we hardly ever saw each other. I longed for a week away together, playing board games and enjoying each others' company. I just knew that Disney World would be that dream vacation, so we piled into our old blue van and headed for the famed "Space Mountain."

Nothing turned out as I had pictured it. The four teens spent a great deal of their time in the "Sunshine State" napping. When we finally got to the Magic Kingdom, my suggestions that we stay together went unheard. The kids took off like marbles dropped on concrete. I felt lucky to snap a picture or two whenever we regrouped.

That was the story of the whole week. The kids would go off in twos or threes to swim or hang out. Even our nine-year-old walked at least six feet behind us. I was pretty miserable. Where was all our together time? Finally, I began to realize that all those weeks I was planning how I wanted to spend our family vacation, but the kids had different ideas.

Once I let go of my particular plan, I began to have fun. We even managed to play one or two board games. And we took great pictures. My favorite is of our five children, arm in arm, all wearing big grins and Mickey Mouse ears. Today, whenever I look at that picture I realize we can't force a mountaintop experience, but sometimes if we just let go, it may happen.

REFLECTION

Scriptural Context – Gospel Parallels

The account of the Transfiguration appears in all three synoptic gospels (Matthew, Mark and Luke). The word, synoptic, means 'seen together' and these three gospels can be seen together because they have so much material in common. It is now accepted that the gospel of Mark was the first written as so much of it appears in the other two, while the gospels of Matthew and Luke both seem to have also drawn on another source of Jesus material (known as the 'Q' source). Despite the parallels, each writer uses the same story to convey the particular message of that gospel.

Living the Gospel – 'Listen to him!'

God's voice from the cloud claims Jesus as his Son, the Chosen One, and then goes on to instruct those present – and we, the readers – to 'Listen to him!' For the disciples, this was a message not to get carried away with their own ideas about the Messiah but to listen to what Jesus was saying about the suffering he must endure and to what he was saying about true discipleship. Jesus tells us that to be a follower of his involves sacrifice, hardship and often unpopularity. It is this message we must listen to as much as the promise of salvation

Gospel Focus – A new vision

Peter sees the appearance of Elijah and Moses as a confirmation that Jesus has come to continue the work of the great prophets of the past. Rather than placing Jesus in the old tradition of the prophets, the appearance of Elijah and Moses, together with the voice of God, is to endorse the new direction that Jesus' ministry is taking. Jesus' new vision for the world is informed by the relationships forged between God and the prophets of the past, but it is a vision of a completely different way of relating to God: a much more personal relationship that calls us to respond from the heart to those around us.

Questions for Adults

What message did the Transfiguration hold for the three disciples who witnessed it? What message does the event hold for us today? Have you ever had the experience of not wanting to 'go back down the mountain'? Why is this reading chosen for use in the season of Lent?

THE0942 Justice and Peace – Catholic Social Teaching

Unit overview and content

This unit provides an advanced study of the body of thought known as Catholic Social Teaching (CST), sometimes called 'the Church's Best Kept Secret'.

The unit is founded in the issues of conflict and injustice which have given rise to revolution, war and migration the world over. It begins by situating within a philosophical context, examining a variety of theories of justice, from Plato and Aristotle through to modern philosophers such as John Stuart Mill and John Rawls. Out of this foundation it then examines, in-depth, the historical development of modern Catholic Social Teaching, especially as it has been expressed in the Church's official documents and by experts in the field. Finally, the course allows students to apply their advanced knowledge of this field to a particular case study of their choice.

Dear brothers and sisters,

Re: COVID-19 Update

You will be aware through the media and other sources of emerging concerns over the spread of COVID-19 (earlier referred to corona virus.)

Several weeks ago, I issued on behalf of Bishop Vincent some directions around certain liturgical practices which have been accepted by the clergy and people of the Diocese, and it has provided a measure of protection and comfort for many of our people who are rightly concerned about this health issue.

A new set of directions were sent to the clergy today which adheres to advice that we have received from public health authorities about the risks of transmission associated with the virus. One of these risks concerns the administration of Holy Communion.

In the Latin Church, Holy Communion can be received in two ways, either on the tongue or in the hand. From today, Holy Communion can only be received in the hand because of the high risk of transmission if people continue to receive on the tongue.

I understand that for those of you who normally received Holy Communion on the tongue that this is a matter of pious practice and reverence for the Blessed Sacrament and that you may have been doing so your entire life. In the current circumstances, I ask that you adjust to the practice of Holy Communion in the hand for the sake of your fellow parishioners.

I further ask that you respect those administering Holy Communion, both ordinary and extraordinary ministers, who have received a directive that they cannot administer Holy Communion on the tongue.

As soon as this health risk is mitigated, and advice comes from the public health officials we will revert to the usual liturgical practices that applied before the appearance of COVID-19.

Every blessing in this season of Lent,

Very Rev Peter G. Williams
Vicar General & Moderator of the Curia

ON A LIGHTER NOTE

A couple go for a meal at a Chinese restaurant and order the "Chicken Surprise". The waiter brings the meal, served in a lidded cast iron pot. Just as the wife is about to serve herself, the lid of the pot rises slightly and she briefly sees two beady little eyes looking around before the lid slams back down. "Good grief, did you see that?" she asks her husband. He hadn't, so she asks him to look in the pot. He reaches for it and again the lid rises, and he sees two little eyes looking around before it slams down. Rather perturbed, he calls the waiter over, explains what is happening, and demands an explanation. "Please sir," says the waiter, "what you order?" The husband replies, "Chicken Surprise." "Ah! So sorry," says the waiter, "I brought you Peeking Duck."

SAINT OF THE WEEK

SAINT FINA (SERAPHINA)

Patron Saint of Gimignano, Tuscany, Italy
Feast Day: 12th March

St. Fina or Seraphina, Virgin A.D. 1253 was born of poor parents in the town of San Gimignano and is remembered as a Saint for the perfect resignation with which she accepted her bodily suffering. She lived the life of a recluse at home, spending much of the night in prayer.

Her father died when she was still young and around this time, Fina was attacked by a sudden complication of diseases which caused paralysis. Her mother had to leave her for hours while she went to work or beg, but Fina never complained. Desiring to be like Our Lord on the cross, for six years she lay on a plank in one position, unable to turn or to move. Although in terrible pain she always maintained serenity and with her eyes fixed upon the crucifix she kept on repeating, "It is not my wounds but thine, O Christ, that hurt me".

Her mother died suddenly and Fina was left utterly destitute except for one devoted friend Beldia. Someone had told her about St. Gregory the Great and his sufferings, and she had had a special veneration for him. She used to pray to him to intercede with God that she might have patience in her affliction. Eight days before her death as she lay alone and untended, Gregory appeared to her and said, "Dear child on my festival God will give you rest". And it came to pass when her body was removed from the board on which it had rested, the rotten wood was found to be covered with white violets.

All the city attended the funeral and many miracles were reported as having been wrought through her intercession. From St. Fina's example we come to know the power of living hope-filled lives, with trust in God's dream for each one of us.
